Read the following passage and answer the questions that follow-

In 1985, Mikhail Gorbachev, launched an ill-fated anti-alcohol campaign in the then Soviet Union. The anti-alcohol campaign had some beneficial public health consequences: Crime fell and life expectancy rose. But the campaign was a political and economic disaster. Gorbachev forgot that the addiction of the state to alcohol revenue was even more incurable than the addiction of some citizens to alcohol itself. The budgetary losses created an economic crisis. Historians suspect that more than the loss of the Soviet Empire, it was this campaign that delegitimised Gorbachev. An old Soviet joke went like this: A disaffected and angry citizen, fed up of standing in lines for vodka, decided to go assassinate Gorbachev. He soon came back and ruefully reported that the lines to assassinate Gorbachev were even longer than the lines for Vodka. As the lockdown eased in India, and social distancing went for a toss at alcohol outlets, we were reminded of how difficult an issue alcohol is to rationally discuss in India. The stampede was caused by the ineptness with which the opening was handled in most cities. Alcohol has also migrated from being a question of personal freedom and choice to an issue in broader cultural wars, an odd site on which we measure progressivism in India. It is also a window on how liberalism has been misunderstood. Liberals should, rightly, be suspicious of prohibition on moral and practical grounds. Government grossly exceeds its legitimate power when it interferes with the rights of individuals to lead their lives as they please, and fashion their selves after their own ideals, interests and preferences. And certainly, moralism or puritanism on alcohol cannot be the basis of state policy. That moralism has no basis, and it violates the dignity and freedom of individuals.

58. Which of the following statements weakens the argument that Moralism on Alcohol cannot be the basis of State Policy?

- i. The State should not interfere with people's right to drink; but there will be a backlash if drinking takes forms that inflict great social harms.
- ii. Freedom should not be divorced from Moderation.
- iii. The State should not interfere in matters of sexuality or intimacy. But norms of freedom will impose serious costs and will not survive if the expressions of sexuality are consistently degrading or violent, as we have seen in the locker room scandals.
- iv. All of the above.

Read the following passage and answer the questions that follow-

Research has now found that the key to a long life lies not in medicine but in museums. A study conducted by researchers at University College London says on the basis of its examination of a sample of 6,000 adults in the United Kingdom aged 50 years and above that frequent trips to the museum and sites of art — concerts, opera, exhibition galleries — can play an instrumental role in prolonging life. The findings complement earlier research, which argued that engaging with community art projects helps battle serious health conditions such as depression, chronic pain and even dementia. It seems that investments in creative pursuits — watching, appreciating or critiquing art — could have therapeutic consequences for cognitive ability. It would be unwise to scoff at these inferences. For data seem to bear out the hypothesis. The life expectancy at birth in the UK is nearly 80 years for men and almost 83 for women, while the corresponding figures for India are 67.8 and 70.4. This difference can be attributed to the fact that a lot many people visit the UK's museums, which are stupendous repositories of not just the past but also culture.

61. If the author's arguments in the passage above are true, which of the following must also be true?

- i. Countries can increase the lifespan of their citizens by building more exhibition galleries and opera houses.
- ii. Countries can increase the lifespan of their citizens by prohibiting smoking.
- iii. Regular exercise greatly increases lifespan.
- iv. Eating fruits daily helps increase lifespan

- 62. Which of the following, if true, most weakens the author's conclusion?
- Indian prefer to spend money on going to restaurants rather than museums.
 - India has more museums than exhibition galleries.
 - The UK provides free medicines and medical advice at museums.
 - People in the UK have access to better and cheaper healthcare than people in India

- 63. What role does the author's claim that a lot many people visit the UK's museums play in the argument in the passage?

- It is the conclusion that the author draws based on the findings of research studies.
- It supports the author's conclusion as to why people in the UK have a longer lifespan than people in India.
- It contradicts the claim that people in India have longer lifespans than people in the UK.
- It supports the findings of the earlier research about engaging with community art projects.

- 64. Which of the following does not weaken the conclusions drawn by the researchers at University College London?

- Data show that visiting museums frequently does not affect the lifespans of adults aged 25-40.
- Data show that people who visit museums and art sites are also better educated.
- Both (a) and (b) above weaken the conclusions.
- Neither (a) nor (b) weakens the conclusions.

- 65. Which of the following best expresses the main conclusion of the passage above?

- Universities in the UK conduct more studies on reasons affecting people's lifespans.
- Engaging with community art projects can help treat dementia.
- People in the UK have longer lifespans because they visit museums more often.
- More people in the UK visit museums than in India.
